

ON WALLS

Would you build walls around a swamp?

Or would you tear down all walls, and invite the world to join you in one?

These seem to be the only two questions either side allows.

I say to both of you:

Build a shining city on a hill.

So that you may have something worth protecting.

Only then will you know of what walls you may need.